If a student enrolls for more than one course, attendance will be monitored over each of the CoEs (or courses) if one single course is not more than 6 months. If a student changes courses and receives a new CoE, or extends enrolment in the current course, thereby getting a new CoE, attendance will be monitored over each of the CoEs separately, rather than over the entire period of the student's enrolment at SELC. If a student is absent through illness, a student must provide a medical certificate to student reception. Any absence even if supported by a medical certificate is counted towards the student's total absences when calculating attendance. However, a medical certificate may be considered as compassionate or compelling circumstances and SELC may choose not to report a student for breaching of 80% if attendance is at least 70%. In addition, SELC reserves the right to exclude you from further classes without compensation if you fail to attend class regularly and punctually, and there is no proper excuse for your absence. As well as being contrary to student visa regulations, irregular class attendance disrupts classes for other students.

SELC reserves the right to discipline or expel school students whose conduct is unsatisfactory. No refund of tuition fees will be made in the case of expulsion from the school. Students will have the right to access SELC's Complaints and Appeals Procedure if they disagree with any Code of Conduct decision made against them.
